AETNA DEMURS TO EIGHT MEN CALL SUIT OF QUARLES

Attorney Patteson Alleges Facts in Declaration Are Insufficient in Law.

S. S. P. Patteson, attorney for the Aetna Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., filed a demurrer in the United States District Court yesterday morning to the declaration in the suit of Mrs. Ann H. Quarles, who seeks to recover $15,000 under a contract of accident insurance held by her late husband, Mann S. Quarles. Hearing on the demurrer will probably be deferred until the April term of the court.

Attorney Patteson alleges each and every count of the declaration to be insufficient in law, and bases his conclusion on the following grounds:

"First. The declaration fails to set out the alleged grounds or facts on which the action is based, but only states conclusions of law.

"Second. The declaration fails to definitely set forth how the alleged accident to the decedent, Mann S. Quarles, occurred, and does not in any way attempt to state the alleged facts of the said accident.

"Third. The allegation that 'the said Mann S. Quarles died suddenly and violently through external, violent and accidental means' is not sufficient in law to give the defendant notice to the nature of said alleged accident, or how or when or where it occurred.

"Fourth. The said declaration does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

MARCHETTI FINED

Broad Street Confectioner Convicted on Charge of Violating Sunday Law.

Giles Jackson, a negro lawyer, and a man prominent among his race, represented Louis Marchetti (white) in the Police Court yesterday morning when the defendant, who was fined $5 and costs, and was warned by Justice Crutcher that a second offense would mean a fine of $10 and security of $100 for twelve months, and a third offense a fine of $100 and forfeiture of the bond. Marchetti runs a stand for the negro trade.

E. P. Banks (colored) was also fined for laboring at his trade on Sunday, and the case against him of selling cigarettes to a boy under sixteen years of age was continued to February 15. He was bailed in the sum of $50.

Herbert Moore (white), nineteen years old, was fined $10 and bailed on $100 security for twenty days on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

R. G. Wood (white), charged with cruelly working a horse, was fined $15.

Brane Made Captain

Among the first officers in the Virginia volunteers to be commissioned by Governor Mann is John B. Brane, who received his commission as captain yesterday. Mr. Brane is made captain of Company B, Second Regiment, Infantry, stationed at Chase City. The papers will reach him this morning.

Citizens Opposed to Annexation of Manchester to Outline Attitude.

A call was issued yesterday for a mass-meeting of citizens opposed to the consolidation of Richmond and Manchester, to be held at the Central Y. M. C. A. building to-morrow night at 8:15 o'clock. The signers of the call are: John P. Branch, N. W. Bowe, Levin Joyce, Charles W. Hardwick, F. W. Scott, A. H. Christian, Jr., James Caskey and William Elyson.

It is not known what plan is proposed by those opposed to the union of the cities. Mr. Branch, Mr. Bowe and Mr. Caskey have been open and fearless opponents of the measure for some time, and have thrown the weight of their influence against it, though their reasons, except from the purely economical standpoint, have not been fully advanced.

At the City Hall there seems no doubt that the ordinance will pass on Friday night, when it comes before the Common Council in adjourned session. A number of other matters will be in favor of annexation, but yet balk at the terms as tending too much in Manchester's interest, have indicated their willingness to fall into line with the unanimous wish of the commercial organizations of the city, on the ground that the movement is too large and too pregnant of possibilities for the growth of the city to be hampered or set back over differences on minor details which will adjust themselves in time. It is supposed that the meeting, called by Mr. Branch and others will outline the views of the larger capitalists and property owners, in opposition to the union, and that possibly some form of protest or memorial may be forwarded to the Council.

LAUREN GLAZEBROOK, JR., JUMPS INTO THE FRAY

Since Larkin W. Glazebrook, Jr., got into the race yesterday as a candidate for the Common Council from Henry Ward, politics is picking up in those districts, where Harry Huper led the ticket a couple of years ago. Mr. Glazebrook is said to be a fearless fighter, he is energetic and tireless, and his friends say it takes a tireless man to sit up in the Council chamber late at night grinding out laws. The appearance of Mr. Glazebrook will make things lively in the ward, according to those friends who got behind him and simply urged him to run.

Bar Association Meets To-night.

The annual meeting of the Bar Association of the city of Richmond will be held at the Commonwealth Club to-night at 8:30 o'clock. Officers for the coming year will be elected and other matters of a business nature will be considered. Following the formal session J. T. Coleman, of Lynchburg, will entertain the members with a social buffet supper will be served.

CITY IS URGED TO BUILD WHARF

Shippers Point Out Advantage of Municipal Ownership on Water Front.

EFFECT ON FREIGHT RATES

Mr. Freeman and Mr. Morgan Tell How Deeper Channel Will Stimulate Trade.

Representatives of commercial organizations appeared before the Council Committee on Finance last night urging the appropriation of $25,000 for the construction of a municipal wharf extending from Gillie's Creek to the foot of Nicholson Street and the expenditure of $8,000 for the erection of a wharf building at the west end for the accommodation of freight. J. C. Freeman, who has helped engineer the movement for better wharf facilities, and several citizens spoke on the advantages of the proposition, comparing Richmond with other cities along the Atlantic seaboard. Mr. Freeman stated that while the amount asked was only a small part of what was actually needed, it would do a great deal more in the way of showing the United States government that the citizens of Richmond were in earnest in their attempt to make Richmond equal to other ports, thus inducing the government to spend the money that has been asked.

Councilman Garber, a member of the committee, referred to the advantage of building the wharf and straightening the harbor line, stating that at present many vessels were obliged to anchor in midstream.

I. G. Carter, of the Grain Exchange; J. W. Sharpe, of the Business Men's Club; J. G. Corley, of the Retail Merchants' Association; John D. Murrell, of the Richmond Yacht Club, and William C. Bentley, D. S. Harwood and Thomas Polindexter, of the Fishermen's Protective Association, advocated the appropriation.

Leading Shipper Talks. S. T. Morgan, president of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, who was introduced as the largest shipper out of Richmond, said that it was the biggest question that had confronted the people here for a number of years. "If we ever expect to make the city what it ought to be," he said, "we should take care of the water. We cannot expect the United States government to help us unless we show some interest."

Mr. Morgan went on to show that Richmond needed public wharves at which any ship could anchor and discharge or take on a cargo, saying that it could not compete with others until better port facilities were provided. Owners of sea-going vessels, he said, wanted to get their craft into fresh water on the wharf and would be glad for that if for nothing else to get cargoes bringing them to this city. The city tug, he declared, when not engaged in pumping sand, could make good money by towing ships into the docks. It would also be a great advantage to the railways by making this city a distributing point for freight. Business Manager Dabney, of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke in the same vein.

A business man, said Mr. Freeman, ought to profit by the experience of others instead of buying his own, and keep a little ahead of the game or get out. He thought Richmond in a position to do one or the other. Taking Baltimore as an example, he told of the great gain to the city in commerce directly after the war, but how in recent years Richmond, comparatively speaking, had taken the lead except in shipping by water. He spoke of the great water trade of the city in spite of the fact that it is 17 miles from the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay, while Richmond is more than forty miles less. After the fire in 1904 Baltimore acquired a large amount of water front for docks and piers, issuing bonds to pay for them, and he said that city maintained itself within the next fifty years without any additional tax on the people.

Cost Really Nominal. Mr. Freeman read letters from every large port from Portland, Me., to Galveston, showing that Richmond was the only city on the list dredging for private corporations and individuals, none of the others maintaining dredging parties. He said that the one here, getting United States engineers, he said that the cost of deepening the river's channel so as to admit the largest ocean-going vessels would be nominal, and that here on account of sharp curves near City Point.

It is proposed that a straight cut be made with government money through these curves, making the channel and shortening the distance to the sea at least twenty-five miles.

Alderman Grundy asked the difference in freight rates by water between Baltimore and Richmond. Mr. Morgan replied that the rates, as far as his company was concerned, were the same, but that only boats drawing fourteen feet or less were able to reach Richmond.

Assistant City Engineer Jones, in the absence of Mr. Bolling, explained the proposed docks, which are designed to begin at the old stone wharf on the left side of Gillie's Creek and extend to the foot of Nicholson Street, thus covering 650 feet. The wharf building, to be located on the west end, will cover 200 feet of water front and will cost about $8,000. The committee, while it took no action on the matter last night, seemed favorably impressed with the argument.

Building Permits. Building permits were issued yesterday as follows: To erect a three-story office building on the north side of Monument Avenue between Allen Avenue and Lombardy Street, to cost $12,000, Richmond, H. S. Holland, lessee, to erect a one-story concrete office, 136 West Broad Street, to cost $150.

Post-Offices Discontinued. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] The following named post-offices have been ordered discontinued: Marl, Springfield, Gaynesville, Burgess, Holt and Adriance.

Contest for Marshaling. Washington, D. C., February 8.—The Alton freight-mail train for the marshaling of the Western District is bringing many Republican politicians to the city. Among those here today were Robert F. Wiler, postmaster at Staunton, Colonel S. Brown Allen's right-hand man, and S. G. Proffitt, the candidate of the Fifth District.

REMNANT OF ARMY COMES IN SPRING

Society of Potomac to Hold Annual Meeting Here in May.

FIVE HUNDRED EXPECTED

Distinguished Body of Federal Veterans to Hold Reunion in South.

The Society of the Army of the Potomac, in letters to Governor Mann, Mayor Richardson and officers of R. E. Lee Camp, No. 1, announce that the annual meeting of that association will be held in Richmond in May. It is expected that at least 500 members of the organization will make the trip South, and that the leader will be Horatio C. King, president. The Society of the Army of the Potomac, which included members comprising the remnants of the survivors of the Army of the Potomac, is one of the most renowned of the many patriotic organizations of those who fought for the North in the Civil War.

George T. Hyde, secretary of the society, in a conversation with Captain P. J. White, of this city, commander of R. E. Lee Camp, No. 1, made preliminary arrangements for the visit last summer, when the two veterans met in Fredericksburg. Although Captain White could not at that time state what the attitude of the local camp might be, he expressed the opinion that the heroes who wore the blue would be cordially received, and it is probable that this informal statement, repeated in the action taken by the Northerners.

Of High Character. The Society of the Army of the Potomac, while distinctly a patriotic organization, requires that its members comply with certain social requirements, and this has made the association a superior one, which is regarded in the North as second to no other of the many associations of like character now in existence. Governor Mann referred his letter to Lee Camp, with the recommendation that the veterans be invited South, and Mayor Richardson, in stronger language, took a similar view.

The letters were presented to Lee Camp at its last meeting, when a resolution was adopted sending greetings to the society and urging that it come to Richmond. It is understood that the announcement received here especially stated that the society will provide its own entertainment, and that it is already prepared to entertain it at a smoker, which will be given in the headquarters of the camp.

Lee Camp Visited Baltimore. In 1885, when Lee Camp visited Baltimore, it was entertained at a reception by the city, and the ceremonies here in May will be in the nature of an exchange of courtesies. Several branches of the Society of the Potomac have been established in recent years in Virginia. Members of the society are enthusiastic over the proposed visit, and it is more than probable that many entertainments will be given in honor of the visitors, many of whom will make their first visit to Richmond since the war.

GIVES ANNUAL DANCE

Employees of Miller & Rhoads Elect Officers and Dine.

Employees of Miller & Rhoads, known as the Miller & Rhoads Mutual Aid Association, held their annual ball and banquet in the store last night, the occasion being most highly enjoyed by every employee of the firm. The business meeting of M. & R. Malone was elected president. Members of the association were elected as follows: Secretary, W. E. Miller; Treasurer, F. T. Bates; Vice-President, Addison Lewis; Board of Directors, A. H. Langhoun, C. C. Lobsenz, H. B. Dickinson, O. L. Wells, Miss Teresa Carnoli and Miss Cora Homan.

A large and appreciative audience assembled last night in the auditorium of the McGill Catholic Union to hear a lecture delivered by Jacob Kemper, of Utica, N. Y. The lecturer held the undivided attention of his audience, his humorous sallies being especially enjoyed.

MEAT BOYCOTT NOT VERY STRONG

Dealer Says There Is No Decrease in Daily Amount Sold Hereabouts.

NEED SUSTAINING FOOD

People Not Taking Kindly to Vegetarian Diet to Whip Trust Magnates.

If dealers in meats and butchers in various parts of the city, especially those who dispose of their wares in sections where the laboring people buy, are to be taken seriously, the boycott of meat recently started by the Central Trades and Labor Council is a boycott in name only. According to statements made yesterday, there has been little decrease in the trade in meats except during the first few days after the diet went forth from headquarters. Then, it is said, there was a perceptible falling off in that class of trade, but it soon came back to its normal figures, and is now firm at about the general average.

"Except during a short period immediately after the boycott was declared," said a prominent dealer yesterday, "I have seen very little change in our sales, which are largely to laboring people and mechanics. Of course, I cannot say whether or not they are members of unions, but as they work in shops where union labor is generally employed, I presume they are affected by orders of the Central Trades and Labor Council. The fact that there was quite a falling off in trade for several days after the adoption of the resolutions by the council leads me to believe that the great many of our customers considered themselves affected by the order and abstained from meat until they found it was necessary for them, no matter what the price."

Prices Not Affected. The dealer stated also that there had been no fall in price except very recently in pork on account of a glut on the market. That, he said, was practically over, and that prices within the next week or two would be at their former level. There has been practically no change in other meats. Vegetable merchants have seen no change in the demand for their goods, so the natural inference is that little attention has been paid to the boycott order.

The resolutions passed by the Central Trades and Labor Council, if carried out to the letter, would have made vegetarians out of not only members of all affiliated unions, but every member of the population of the city refusing to buy meat, it is hardly possible that the dealers could have failed to have felt it heavily.

MORE WORK FOR DR. DAVIS

J. W. Tredway Falls Twelve Feet and Severely Sprains His Back.

While working on a building at Seventeenth and Main Street, J. W. Tredway (white) fell twelve feet yesterday and severely sprained his back. He was attended by Dr. Davis, of the city ambulance, and afterwards taken to the hospital. He is a member of the population of the city refusing to buy meat, it is hardly possible that the dealers could have failed to have felt it heavily.

Case Argued Yesterday. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday heard argument in the case of the Long Pole Lumber Company, plaintiff in error, against Charles Cress, defendant in error, in error to the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Virginia at Lynchburg.

The case was argued by P. H. C. Cabell, of Richmond, and V. L. Sexton and H. John Roberts, of Pocahontas. Represented the plaintiff in error was W. H. Werth, of Tazewell, and H. A. Routh, of Lebanon. The argument was submitted.
